

International Medley of Inoculation Occurrences

Flu Vaccine – Can it cause infertility and does it contain Polysorbate 80/Tween 80?

Now, there's not much additional evidence that polysorbate 80, specifically, can directly cause infertility. Infertility-inducing vaccines typically tend to be laced with human Chorionic Gonadotropin (hCG). However, that doesn't mean that the 1993 rat study is not an indication that it might harm your fertility, and it doesn't mean polysorbate 80 is safe to use.

We also know polysorbate 80 is a potential inductor of anaphylactic shock.

One 2005 study concluded that, "Polysorbate 80 is a ubiquitously used solubilizing agent that can cause severe nonimmunologic anaphylactoid reactions."

Cancer researchers have also investigated some of the effects of Tween80.

One cancer study looking at the effects of Tween80 on the in vitro metabolism of very specific cancer cells found the detergent caused marked increases in the cell permeability. Soluble nucleotides and amino acids were removed by the Tween80 treatment, and oxygen uptake was reduced by 50 percent, among other things.

While this in and of itself has nothing to do with causing infertility, it's clear that Tween80/polysorbate 80 causes significant cell permeability, allowing whatever else is in the vaccine in question to also enter your cells.

Most seasonal flu vaccines contain dangerous levels of mercury in the form of thimerosal, a deadly preservative that is 50 times more toxic than regular mercury. If taken in high enough doses, thimerosal can result in long-term immune, sensory, neurological, motor, and behavioral dysfunctions.

It can also predispose adults to neurological problems such as Alzheimer's disease and dementia.

But thimerosal is not the only concern when it comes to flu vaccines. You also have the dangers of immune adjuvants like squalene or aluminum to contend with. (Aluminum adjuvants are used in approved U.S. influenza vaccines while other countries may allow squalene to be added as an adjuvant).

India 17/09/2010 - Twins die minutes after measles vaccination

In a shocking incident, twin babies in Ghaziabad died minutes after being administered measles vaccine

Police book absconding doctor for culpable homicide

Ghaziabad: Sunil Sharma can't believe his twin daughters Avika and Anika are no more. The textile merchant from Ghaziabad had never imagined that a measles vaccine at a private nursing home in the town would take the life of the his nine-month-old daughters. Sunil claims his daughters died minutes after being administered the vaccine, usually given when a baby is nine months old, at Divya Nursing Home. Akhil Sharma, an uncle of the twins, said: "I took them for the vaccination around 6 pm on Wednesday. They were given the vaccination around 7.15 pm. In 15 minutes, the children started breathing heavily.

We rushed to the doctor who gave them oxygen. But the babies had died by then. Still Dr Satyaveer Singh referred them to Sarvodya Hospital." "My wife fainted on hearing about the death of our daughters. She could not believe the news," said Sunil, who stays in Swarnjayanti Puram. The family soon gathered at the hospital and sought an explanation.

When the doctors failed to provide a satisfactory explanation for the deaths, they lodged a complaint. The Ghaziabad police have registered an FIR at the Kavi Nagar police station against Dr Satyaveer Singh under Section 304 of the IPC for culpable homicide not amounting to murder. "I have given orders to seal the hospital and take samples of the vaccine.

The doctor is absconding. We have approached the Chief Medical Officer to probe the incident," said SSP Raghuraj Lal. CMO A K Dhawan said he cannot comment on whether the vaccine caused the deaths as a probe is on into the incident.

The Indian Medical Association's local president Dr Santosh Aggrawal, who visited the hospital after the incident, confirmed that the health of the twins deteriorated after being administered the vaccine. "The doctor had a fresh supply of the vaccine. Still there could be something wrong with the batch of vaccines. Similar deaths have been reported from Kanpur and Lucknow," he added.

Excerpt of Dr Mercola's comments on the above article:

As Barbara Loe Fisher, founder of the National Vaccine Information Center, recently stated:

"The truth is, nobody knows how many vaccine victims there are in America, how many of the 1 in 6 learning disabled children; or the 1 in 9 with asthma; or the 1 in 100 who develop autism; or the 1 in 450 who become diabetic, can trace their chronic inflammation, disease and disability back to vaccine reactions that have been dismissed by public health officials and doctors for the past century as just "a coincidence.""

A quick search of the Vaccine Adverse Event Reporting System (VAERS) reveals nearly 1,000 U.S. deaths related to various vaccines. With over 70 vaccines included, VAERS is an excellent tool that can help you easily identify which vaccines are associated with the most side effects.

It is important to know, though, that only a tiny fraction of the reactions are actually reported. Studies have estimated that less than 10 percent, to as little as ONE percent, of side effects are ever reported, so the true side effects, and deaths, are easily FAR higher than the reported statistics represent.

This is information that you, as a parent or even when deciding on vaccines for yourself, need to be aware of.

Australian Children Suffered Seizures After Flu Vaccine

As we gear up for flu season in the United States, one glaring example of the side-effect risk of "routine" vaccinations can be taken from Australia.

The Australian Department of Health and Aging has just confirmed that its main seasonal flu vaccine was "causally related" to fever and convulsions in 99 children in 2010.

An analysis by Heath Kelly, head of epidemiology at the state infectious diseases laboratory in Melbourne, further revealed that getting the Fluvax vaccine was actually worse than getting the flu, as the vaccine caused two to three hospital admissions due to convulsions, for every hospital admission the flu prevented.

This vaccine is very similar to the one being administered in the United States right now, with no warning to parents whatsoever!

Philippines

An American paper published in 1922 reported:

"The Philippines have experienced three smallpox epidemics since the US took over the Islands; the first in 1905-06, the second in 1907-08, and the third and worst of all in 1918-19. Before 1905 (with no general vaccination), the case-mortality was about 10%. In the 1905-06 epidemic, with vaccination well started, the case mortality ranged from 25-50%. During the epidemic of 1918-19, with the Philippines supposedly almost universally immunized against smallpox by vaccination, the case-mortality averaged over 65%!"

These figures can be verified by reference to the Report of the Philippine Health Service. The statements are accompanied by the phrase, "The mortality is hardly explainable".

United Kingdom – Tetanus and Encephalitis

Tetanus and encephalitis have long been laid at the door of immunisation. The data on this is impressive. In 1923, 1924 and 1925 the British Government spared no expense to have everybody vaccinated. Thousands of vaccinations were carried out. Immediately a large increase in cases of encephalitis (lethargic) was observed.¹ In 1924, there were 6,296 cases of this illness and similar infections reported in England and Wales, with the population of 38,746,000 at the time; or 162 cases per million of population. Dr Herbert Shelton records:

In Liverpool, with a population of 836,00, there were reported 257 such cases; or 306 cases per million of population. Liverpool was 50% better vaccinated than the average of England and Wales, and had almost 100% more encephalitis. In 1924 there were recorded in England and Wales 5,039 cases of encephalitis lethargic, 397 of cerebro-spinal fever, 777 acute poliomyelitis, 83 of polio-encephalitis – a total of 6,296 cases, with 2,200 deaths, 2,520 permanently injured brains (insane), and 1,575 complete recoveries. The cases in 1924 were three times as great as the yearly average for the nine preceding years.

In its report issued on 27th August 1928, the League of Nations covers 139 cases and 41 deaths in Holland. This resulted in Holland stopping compulsory vaccinations during 1928-29. The total number of vaccinations in Holland in the first half of 1928 was less than 1/3 of those for the first half of 1927 and the deaths from encephalitis were reduced to less than 1/3.”²

Whooping Cough

Secret trials that crippled 55 babies by Lucy Johnston:

“Fifty-five babies died or were permanently brain-damaged during secret government trials to test a new vaccine for whooping cough, the Daily Express can reveal. The trials were conducted on thousands of pre-school children even though the drug was at a highly experimental stage.

Nobody told the parents that their babies could be at risk from the tests which also caused convulsions, and permanent disablement. Olivia Price from the Vaccine Victims Support Group said families now need proper compensation to help care for their loved ones.

She added: ‘This is unforgivable. The Government knew damage could be done – anyone with baby should have the freedom of choice to decide whether or not they wanted their child to risk this. The fact that these parents were not told anything and their children were left so damaged is nothing short of abuse.’

The trials based in London, Bradford, Newcastle and Liverpool were carried out by the Medical Research Council between 1948 and 1956. The victims are now in their 40s to 50s and still need round-the-clock care.” (This information was published in 2001).³

Tetanus Vaccines administered in Philippines

On 21 January 1995, Sister Mary Pilar Verzosa RGS, of Pro-Life Philippines, Pandacan, Manila, wrote a letter to Judi Brown, President of the American Life League. The letter contained an alarm, which has since been sounded across the globe. Part of this letter reads as follows:

“At present we are doing research on the tetanus vaccines that were given last March 1994 by our Dept of Health to women of reproductive age. Many of the women complained of bleeding (miscarriages) and allergies. We got alarmed recently when we received communications from Magally Llaguno that the vaccine in Mexico contain hCG...if you have enough [research] papers, could your group do a press release via international press like Reuters so that all countries could be alerted?”⁴

The substance in question found in the vaccine was human Chorionic Gonadotrophin. Professional pharmacologist Judith Richter writes thus “hCG is released by the fertilised egg cell soon after fertilisation and continues to be produced by the placenta. It stimulates the corpus luteum in the ovary to continue to produce progesterone.”⁵

¹ Encephalitis – Inflammation of the brain. It may be caused by a viral or bacterial infection, or it may be part of an allergic response to a systemic viral illness or vaccination. – Oxford Medical Dictionary, ibid. P213.

² Public Health Reports, Aug 23, 1929

³ Daily Express, 26 May 2000

⁴ Personal correspondence of the American Life League.

⁵ “Richter Judith, “Vaccination Against Pregnancy: Miracle or Menace?” Catholic Family News, June 1995. In an earlier chapter we covered the role of the corpus luteum in becoming the primary production site for progesterone during the second half of the menstrual cycle.

From this, most would be led to believe that the presence of hCG in a tetanus vaccine would actually have a beneficial effect on the overall health of the female recipient. However, such hCG is not that of a pregnant woman's own embryo and actually causes antibodies to be created that see the embryo of foetus as a foreign body and repel it through miscarriage. Thus hCG acts as a chemical abortion agent, and in the case of it being given to girls of reproductive age who are not pregnant, hCG likewise causes prevention of all fertilisations and therefore acts as a sterilizing agent. Additionally, according to medical researchers Dr Judith Richter, Dr George Isajuw and Robert Whelan⁶, hCG suppresses the immune system and in certain cases may cause the onset of opportunistic diseases if malnutrition and mineral depletion are also in evidence.

Sister Pilar wrote a second letter three months later on 16th April 1995: "We re in the midst of a court battle regarding the anti-tetanus vaccines used in the mass immunization of women of reproductive age.⁷ The vials we tested proved positive for beca-hCG, while the women had antibodies against beta-hCG. This means their blood had built up antibodies against pregnancy. The women we tested had miscarriages, stillbirth or premature births. The government has all its forces against us – media is on their side nd we don't know how the judges will turn...."

John Hopkins University, long a major player in the field of eugenics⁸, produced a report that as of 1990, 123 million women in developing countries had been surgically sterilised. Further, JHU was also under contract to the US Agency for International Development, according to the article *"Coming Attractions": Phantom Sterilizations*⁹, which also cites a report prepared by the University on a proposed sterilisation program by vaccine.¹⁰

Measles Jab: New Link to Brain Damage

"A Professor O'Leary, Director of Pathology at Coombe Women's Hospital in Dublin, provides compelling evidence of an association between infection by the measles virus and autism in children, many of whose parents said they developed the condition after they had been injected with Measles Mumps Rubella vaccine or MMR...."¹¹

Five-in-one vaccine led to child deaths: experts
29 July 2010

The pentavalent or the five-in-one vaccine that has been recommended in India by the National Technical Advisory Group on Immunization actually killed children in Sri Lanka and Bhutan, warns an article in the latest issue of the British Medical Journal (BM).

The report by a group, including paediatricians, professors, health activists and a former Indian health secretary, cautions against the introduction of the five-in-one vaccine that combines antigens against five diseases - diphtheria, pertussis, tetanus (DPT), hepatitis B and Haemophilus Influenzae type B (HIB) - in a single shot.

'Our article describes how the World Health Organisation (WHO), in an elaborate cover-up, changed its own criteria for classifying adverse effects to say the vaccine was not responsible for the deaths in Sri Lanka,' Jacob Puliyel, head of paediatrics at St Stephen's Hospital in Delhi and key author, told IANS.

⁶ Whelan Robert K, "Whose Choice: Population Controllers of Yours", Human Life 1992 ISBN 0846680426. Robert Whelan's book cites India "which in 1952 became the proving ground for every technique for population control." Referring to a 1922 British Documentary, Something Like War, Whelan comments on the inexperience of many doctors hired to do sterilisation, who botched them, producing 4,000-5,000 ectopic pregnancies, many of which in rural areas resulted in the patients' death.

⁷ Interesting that this mass immunisation program was only for women of reproductive age.

Shocking H1N1 Swine Flu Vaccine Miscarriage Stories From Pregnant Women – Tell Your Doctors That Vaccines And Pregnancy Do Not Mix!

U.S. health authorities have made pregnant women one of the highest priority groups for getting the H1N1 swine flu vaccine, but is it actually safe for pregnant women and their babies? Well, the truth is that miscarriage reports from pregnant women who have taken the H1N1 swine flu vaccine are starting to pour in from all over the nation. Vaccines and pregnancy simply do not mix safely. In fact, the package inserts for the swine flu vaccines actually say that the safety of these vaccines for pregnant women has not been established.

12 Babies Die During Vaccine Trials in Argentina

At least 12 infants who were part of a clinical study to test a pneumonia vaccine have died in Argentina over the course of the past year. The study was sponsored by GlaxoSmithKline, and uses children from poor families. According to the Argentine Federation of Health Professionals, the families are "pressured and forced into signing consent forms". The vaccine trial is still ongoing despite the denunciations.

Whooping Cough Kills 5 in California -- State Declares an Epidemic

Posted By Dr. Mercola | July 15 2010

After the deaths of five infants, California health authorities have declared an epidemic of whooping cough, also known as pertussis.

The announcement came after authorities noticed a sharp spike in reports of pertussis, which often is mistaken for a cold or the flu and is highly contagious.

A CDC study suggests that the resurgence of whooping cough is due to the vaccine causing an increased and more virulent toxin.

The CDC acknowledges that whooping cough is recurring in highly vaccinated countries -- and that it is not just because some children are unvaccinated, although that can be a factor.

According to the CDC:

"The reemergence of pertussis has been attributed to various factors, including increased awareness, improved diagnostics, decreased vaccination coverage, suboptimal vaccines, waning vaccine-induced immunity, and pathogen adaptation ... Pathogen adaptation is supported by several observations."

In other words, vaccinating against the whooping cough pathogens has caused the pathogens to evolve with a more virulent strain.

Pfizer to Pay Tens of Millions for Deaths of Nigerian Children in Drug Trial Experiment

Friday, July 24, 2009 by: David Gutierrez, staff writer

(NaturalNews) Pharmaceutical giant Pfizer has agreed to pay $75 million to settle a class action lawsuit filed against it by Nigerian parents who claim the company caused harm to their children by using them as guinea pigs in a nonconsensual, unlicensed drug trial.

The case began in 1996, when Pfizer needed a human trial to gain approval for its new antibiotic Trovan. When an epidemic of meningitis, cholera and measles broke out in Kano, Nigeria, the company quickly put together a research team and flew them to that country. Pfizer set up a tent right near the medical station where Doctors Without Borders were giving free treatments and recruited 200 children to participate in an unlicensed drug trial.

Parents say they were not told that proven medications were being distributed only yards away, that their children were being enrolled in a drug trial, or that animal studies had suggested that Trovan could cause liver and joint damage.

Eleven of the 200 children in the study died, and parents claim that others suffered from brain damage, organ failure and other severe side effects.

Polio Vaccine Blamed for Outbreaks in Nigeria

Posted by: Dr. Mercola

December 01 2009 |

Polio is spreading in Nigeria -- and health officials say in some cases it's caused by the very vaccine used to fight the paralyzing disease.

The World Health Organization has issued a warning that this particular virus might extend beyond Africa. More than 120 Nigerian children have been paralyzed this year -- twice the number afflicted in 2008.

Nigeria and many other nations use an oral polio vaccine because it's cheaper, easier, and protects entire communities. But it's made from a live polio virus which carries a risk of causing polio. In even rarer instances, the virus in the vaccine can mutate into a deadlier version that ignites new outbreaks. Genetic analysis has proven that such mutated viruses have caused at least seven separate outbreaks in Nigeria.

Jab lifts swine flu risk

By CLAIR WEAVER

AUSTRALIANS are being put at unnecessary risk by mass vaccination for swine flu, which is more likely to cause harm than provide protection.

This is the stark warning to the Government from one of the nation's most respected experts on infectious diseases.

In a scathing assessment of Australia's handling of the pandemic, Professor Peter Collignon says an inappropriate vaccine program has put the public's health at "needless risk".

His alert come as a series of Canadian studies unexpectedly reveal the seasonal flu jab can double the risk of people developing swine flu.

Professor Collignon, director of Canberra Hospital's infectious diseases unit, told The Sunday Telegraph the benefits of the jab "don't outweigh the adverse affects".

"We have to be very wary of risk," he said.

"We need to have more work done before we roll the vaccine out to the entire population."

Professor Collignon's

views are published in the latest editions of the Medical Journal of Australia and Australian Prescriber.

He is concerned by the Canadian research findings and warns that Australia does not have adequate post-vaccine surveillance to establish the risk here.

"The available evidence from these studies suggests that if you have the seasonal flu vaccine, you have twice the chance of ending up in hospital with swine flu," he said.

Professor Collignon claimed in Australian Prescriber that the swine-flu jab was only about 50 per cent protective — and about half the population was already immune to H1N1, as related strains had circulated in the past.

Fuelled by "widespread fear", the Federal Government had made "inappropriate" decisions, including mass vaccination of low-risk people, his report concluded.

The chances of an otherwise healthy person dying of swine flu were less than one in a million, making it less deadly than normal flu, he said.
